ASSET FINANCE FOR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTES

THE EQUIPMENT YOU NEED TODAY

Supporting your business growth

With schools, academies, colleges, universities and other educational institutes working to strict budgets and having to justify each expenditure, it can be difficult to acquire the assets and equipment that schools need to keep them up-to-date with technology. With competition between educational institutes fiercer than ever, one way to differentiate is the extent to which schools can adopt the latest equipment and modern-day learning environments.

Asset finance can allow schools to acquire the technology that they need, and have it installed, before starting to pay towards the equipment, which can help manage budgets. Predictability over cash flow can accelerate return on investment. It also allows you to create modern facilities for learning for the benefits of their students.

As a BESA member, you can be assured that Wesleyan Bank is a reliable and trusted provider to the education sector.

Ashmole Academy case study

Credited by the London Evening Standard as one of the capital's 'Super State' schools, Ashmole Academy is a co-educational facility for 11-19 year olds based in Southgate. In 2010, Ofsted rated it as outstanding and it was one of the first in the UK to convert to Academy status. As one of the top performing schools in the area, it has seen a 50% increase in applications and as a result, has grown in size exponentially.

Ashmole Academy quickly opens new six-form centre to meet student demand with help from Wesleyan Bank.

"With Academy status comes the freedom to make our own funding decisions, so we decided to look for ways to finance the new project so that our aspirations for the school weren't delayed by access to Government funding."
